

A WORKSHOP ON:

INSECTARY HEDGEROWS

Hedgerows for pollinators and beneficial insects

Wednesday, February 15, 2012

7:45am-5:00pm

Farm on Putah Creek in Winters, California

TOPICS WILL INCLUDE:

- Funding incentives for hedgerow installation
- Benefits of native pollinators for crop production
- Selecting plants to maximize insectary habitat
- Incorporating forbs into hedgerows
- Achieving a successful installation
- Wildlife habitat on farms and food safety issues
- TOURS of established hedgerows on several farms!!

Lunch included. Registration Fee $40. To register and for directions, please contact Sheila Pratt at pratt@yolorcd.org or (530) 662-2037 ext. 117

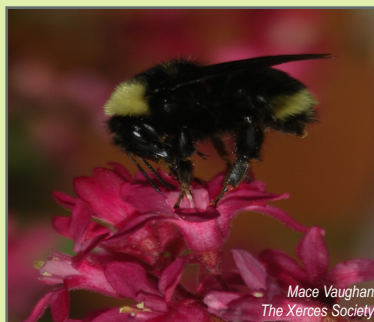

Jessa Guisse
The Xerces Society

WORKSHOP AGENDA

7:45-8:05am	Arrival and Sign-In/ Welcome: Yolo County Resource Conservation District (RCD)
8:05-8:15am	Cost-Share Opportunities and Technical Support: Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS)
8:15-8:35am	Beneficial Insects in Hedgerows: Rachael Long of UC Cooperative Extension
8:35--9:00am	Hedgerows for Native Bees: Contributions to Crop Pollination: Jessa Guisse of Xerces Society
9:15-10:00am	Shrubs and Trees for Insectary Hedgerows: Taylor Lewis of Cornflower Farms
10:00-10:45am	Wildflowers for Pollinator Strips and Hedgerows: John Anderson of Hedgerow Farms and Jessa Guisse
10:45-11:30pm	Site Preparation, Installation, and Maintenance: Miles DePrado of Audubon California and Jeanette Wrynski of Yolo RCD
11:30-Noon	Farming with Food Safety and Conservation in Mind: Jo Ann Baumgartner of Wild Farm Alliance
Noon-1:00pm	Lunch (provided)
1:00-4:00pm	Hedgerow Field Tours
4:00-5:00pm	Wine and Cheese tasting at Hedgerow Farms

Jessa Guisse
The Xerces Society

Mace Vaughan
The Xerces Society

Jessa Guisse
The Xerces Society

Mace Vaughan
The Xerces Society